Johnson & Jensen

Medallion House Is Born; Unique Investment Opportunity Created.

As dealers in medals and related medallic art, the partnership of Johnson & Jensen grew from meager beginnings in February 1977 to a major marketing firm in the medal field by the end of 1982. Yearly sales doubled and redoubled in those years. Partners Dick Johnson and Chris Jensen—both experienced in the medallic field—found the need for such an enterprise among an ever widening group of medal buyers and collectors.

But the one word symbolizing the cumulative effect of these first five years—growth—can be both beneficial and limiting.

Resources of people, talent, space, time and money are often strained because of growth. The more medals the firm sold, the more medals were in demand by their customers. The greater number of sales that were held, the greater number of sales were demanded. It became apparent the medallic field was in need of an aggressive firm knowledgeable in the function of conveying medallic property from one owner to a new owner in an efficient manner and at a fair price. Johnson & Jensen filled this need.

But it found it could no longer grow within the constraints of a partnership of two individuals. Thus, on January 1, 1983, a new corporation was formed and Medallion House Inc was born. No change in personnel, but an opportunity now exists for better growth.

The early success of the firm was based on the knowledge of medals of the two principals, including marketing of medals and the decade long experience of manufacturing medals by one of America's leading medallic firms.

Also success continued because of a broad-based customer list. This grew from a box of 500 names of Chris Jensen's original medal customers to a printout of more than 30,000 names today. These are all on computer with sophisticated codes to be able to select various groups of buyers and prospects.

The style of cataloging also met with success. Virtually in a magic way a $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch emblem and a 12-inch plaque, along with all other medallic items in all sizes, can be described in a uniform and highly readable manner. Collectors marveled at the ease in which they can understand what is being offered through J&J catalog descriptions. Photography of medals and the processing of prints was developed to an art whereby copy and photo appear adjacent to each other, also making it easier for the catalog reader.

But perhaps best of all was the catalog itself. The high quality cataloging and photography was printed on low-cost newsprint paper; thus it was possible to disseminate a "no-frills" high-quality catalog to a very large number of prospects. This is in direct opposition in the numismatic field, a trend that dictates use of expensive glossy paper, printed in 4-colors—high unit cost catalogs mailed to fewer and fewer prospects.

In conducting 22 auction sales during the six years of active, full-time medal dealing, Johnson & Jensen have learned considerable about the very unique business of medal marketing. Perhaps in the view of some, J&J is the leading firm in secondary medal marketing in America today.

This growth and experience has occurred during seriously difficult times. Yet success and profits developed. The past should be a strong indicator of even greater future growth and profits.

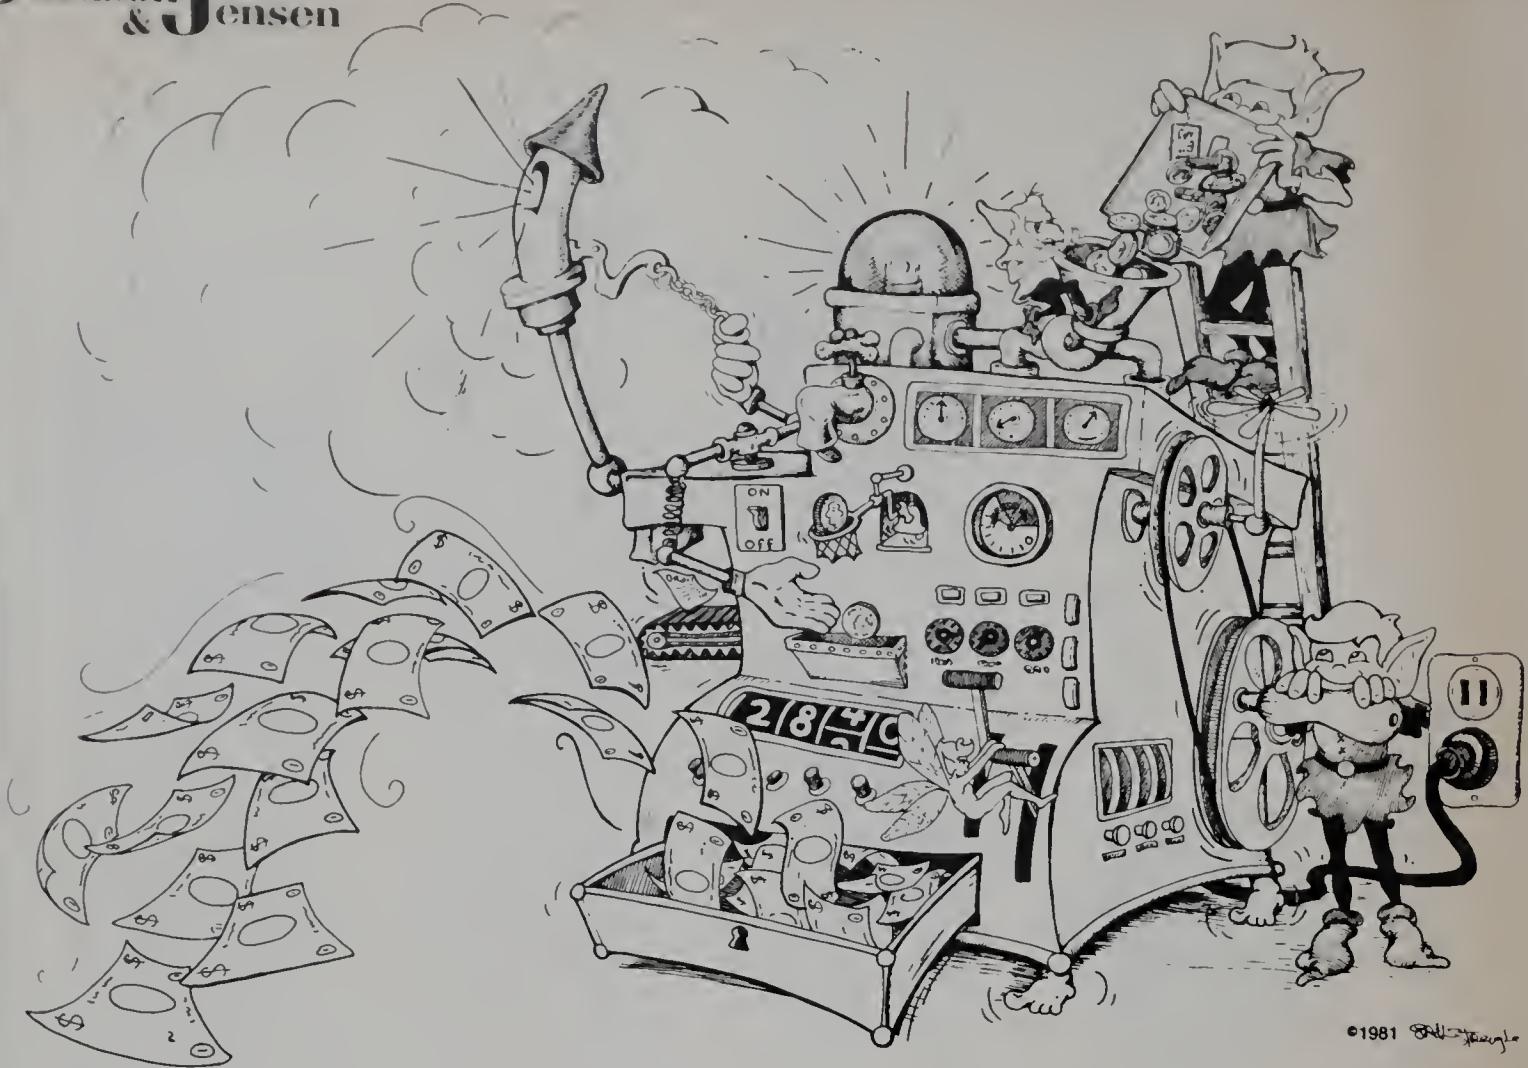

Quite frankly we are seeking one or more investors in Medallion House Inc. We believe these persons are already familiar with our operation—perhaps already on our mailing list and receiving our catalogs. Should you be this person, and have an interest in investing in a numismatic firm with great growth potential, contact Dick Johnson or Chris Jensen at the number below. You will be joining an exciting business in the numismatic field.
